A few highlights of events taking place in early 2010...

Carbon Reduction Commitment Workshops, (dates to be confirmed), UK-wide

With phase 1 of the Carbon Reduction Commitment Energy Efficiency Scheme (CRC) due to begin in the UK on 1st April 2010 we have designed a workshop to help build knowledge on the key compliance features and timelines involved. Our consultants will be on hand to discuss individual scenarios with each delegate to identify a strategic response based on their organisation's financial, competitive and brand exposure to the scheme. These workshops will take place throughout the UK from January onwards.

Risk Management and Strategy Workshop, 10th February, Düsseldorf

Following the success of similar workshops in Brussels, Düsseldorf, Paris, Amsterdam in 2009, this intimate workshop returns with leading practitioners in the fields of energy and risk management, hosting a highly interactive session on how to implement a risk management strategy in line with your specific corporate energy structure. This is an essential event for any company who does not currently have a European-wide energy policy in place or whose current energy policy may be outdated given recent market volatility. Places are restricted to 10 participants to allow for maximum participation and interaction from the floor.

EU and UK Energy Price Forecasting Conference, 14-15th April, London

The Price Forecasting Conference returns in April to present the five year outlook for energy based on the key factors driving price changes in oil, coal, carbon, power and gas. The central theme will be how the predicted global economic recovery will affect energy prices. Subjects covered will include:

- A two speed economic recovery for energy prices
- Copenhagen outcome for Carbon 2012
- Oil delinked from gas
- Can the 'Gas Glut' continue?
- German gas - the emerging market
- End of the TarTam in France?
- Italy - the birth of a new flexible market

Expert analysis will come from EnergyQuote inc. JHAL consultants and leading practitioners from our partners at IHS Global Insight, providing a more intelligent basis for cost avoidance in energy purchasing, helping you to anticipate change and assess market risk.
